Recycle Opportunity: If you haven't already thrown them out, please save Christmas cards for Sallie LittleJohn. Also she'd like to have any greeting cards, not just Christmas ones. She makes tiny, nesting, novelty gift boxes from them which she demonstrated at the recent picnic. She then generously handed them out to those who wanted them.

We received word that Dan McIntyre has suffered a health setback and returned to Asheville from Melbourne.

Update from Alicia Rafter on the unusual trailer spotted in West Palm Beach and reported in the February FYI's. The next time she passed it, the gates were open; she spoke with a young man who was very willing to share the trailer's story and invited her to see the inside and take photos. The trailer is actually a work of art done by New York artist Randy Polumbo. The work is titled Love Stream and was exhibited in New York in September, 2012, at the Steve Kasher Gallery. It is now owned by a West Palm Beach eclectic collector at whose gallery/artspace the trailer is parked. The inside is covered entirely in silver fabric with low tiers, suggesting a grotto. Observed from the street, what Alicia originally thought were colored glass bottles inside, are actually blown-glass phallic symbols. Moving the artwork has taken a toll on the glass attachments and many have been lost, judging from photos of the original. If you want more information, you can find it by researching the artist and/or the work. The photo at left is looking out the front window. The photo below is looking out the back window, both from a vantage point just inside the trailer door.
